CORRUPTION OF FEDERAL PUBLIC OFFICIALS-
LEGISLATIVE BRANCH;
(OO:WF)

On 5/18/92, the writer attended a meeting which was convened at the offices of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, 555 Fourth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. Also present at this meeting were Assistant United States Attorneys (AUSA's) [redacted] and [redacted]. The purpose of this meeting was to request the assistance of the Washington Metropolitan Field Division of the FBI in the captioned matter.

b6
b7C

[redacted] advised that there is currently an ongoing investigation involving the United States House of Representative's Post Office which includes the captioned individuals. This investigation is being led by the United States Attorneys Office and is being conducted by personnel from the United States Capitol Police and Inspectors of the United States Postal Service. The investigation was initiated upon information received from House staffers who were employed at the House Post Office and subsequently lost their positions due to unauthorized usage of Government monies. Several of these individuals have entered into cooperation agreements with the Government in this matter.

As an important point of information, the House Post Office is not an official branch operation of the United States Postal Service. Rather, it is operated by agreement between that Agency and the House of Representatives and uses House staffers as employees. The House Post Office is authorized, however, to perform the common functions of an actual post office.

[ ] stated that this investigation basically is composed of allegations in two areas. The first centers on allegations that Representatives utilized the House Post Office to obtain cash for themselves from their campaign fund accounts and from their accounts appropriated to them for postal expenses.

[ ] advised that evidence exists which indicates that checks from various Representative's campaign fund accounts were written out to the House Post Office for postage expenses. These checks were then cashed by the House Post Office for the full amount and the money provided to the House staffer who presented the check.

[ ] stated that their information indicates that this money was then given directly to the Representative.

Additionally, there are allegations that certain representatives misused their appropriated postal expense accounts. This was done by issuing vouchers for postal expenses and then having the House Post Office redeem these vouchers for cash. These funds also were allegedly provided to the Representative. [ ] advised that these aforementioned misuses of the House Post Office would be false statements and could be in violation of 18 USC, Section 1001.

The second area of the investigation involves the use of United States Post Office boxes to circumvent campaign fund laws. [ ] stated that Representatives are allowed to maintain post office boxes, free of charge, to receive U.S. mail. These boxes were initially set up to allow the speedy receipt of mail by the Representative as the mail would not be required to be processed through the House Post Office. It is thought that the majority of these boxes are maintained at the Main Post Office or the Brentwood Station. [ ] advised that Representatives had campaign fund contribution checks sent to these post office boxes. They would then send staffers to retrieve these checks for them. [ ] advised that the representatives are doing this to avoid the checks being sent directly to their House office, which could be a violation of 18 USC, Section 607.

[ ] stated that the assistance of the FBI was needed as primary jurisdiction for 18 USC, Section 607 lies with the Bureau and, additionally, it is anticipated that there will be a requirement in this matter for FBI laboratory assistance. It is contemplated that the FBI will be the lead investigative Agency with regard to the campaign fraud violations.

Initially, it will be required of the FBI to attempt to locate the post office boxes maintained by Representatives at these two postal facilities. [ ] advised that the United States Attorneys Office was prepared to issue Grand Jury subpoenas to obtain this information if necessary.

It is recommended that this matter be opened and assigned.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS COMMUNICATION IS TO ADVISE FBIHQ THAT WMFO HAS OPENED AN INVESTIGATION INTO CAPTIONED MATTER AND TO UPDATE THE BUREAU ON INVESTIGATION TO DATE.

THIS MATTER WAS INITIATED UPON CONTACT WITH WMFO BY DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AUSA [REDACTED] CHIEF, CRIMINAL DIVISION, AND AUSA [REDACTED] CHIEF, PUBLIC CORRUPTION SECTION, WHO REQUESTED WMFO'S ASSISTANCE WITH AN ONGOING INVESTIGATION BEING CONDUCTED BY THE U.S. POSTAL SERVICE AND U.S. CAPITAL POLICE. ON 5/18/92, AN SA FROM WMFO MET WITH AUSAS [REDACTED] AND [REDACTED] WHO HAVE BEEN INVOLVED WITH THIS INVESTIGATION FROM ITS INCEPTION AND THEY ADVISED AS FOLLOWS:

[REDACTED] ADVISED THAT THERE IS CURRENTLY AN ONGOING INVESTIGATION INVOLVING THE UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVE'S POST OFFICE WHICH INCLUDES THE CAPTIONED INDIVIDUALS. THIS INVESTIGATION IS BEING LED BY THE UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS OFFICE AND IS BEING CONDUCTED BY PERSONNEL FROM THE UNITED STATES CAPITOL POLICE AND INSPECTORS OF THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE. THE INVESTIGATION WAS INITIATED UPON INFORMATION RECEIVED FROM HOUSE STAFFERS WHO WERE

EMPLOYED AT THE HOUSE POST OFFICE AND SUBSEQUENTLY LOST THEIR POSITIONS DUE TO UNAUTHORIZED USAGE OF GOVERNMENT MONIES. SEVERAL OF THESE INDIVIDUALS HAVE ENTERED INTO COOPERATION AGREEMENTS WITH THE GOVERNMENT IN THIS MATTER.

AS AN IMPORTANT POINT OF INFORMATION, THE HOUSE POST OFFICE IS NOT AN OFFICIAL BRANCH OPERATION OF THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE. RATHER, IT IS OPERATED BY AGREEMENT BETWEEN THAT AGENCY AND THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND USES HOUSE STAFFERS AS EMPLOYEES. THE HOUSE POST OFFICE IS AUTHORIZED, HOWEVER, TO PERFORM THE COMMON FUNCTIONS OF AN ACTUAL POST OFFICE.

[ ] STATED THAT THIS INVESTIGATION BASICALLY IS COMPOSED OF ALLEGATIONS IN TWO AREAS. THE FIRST CENTERS ON ALLEGATIONS THAT REPRESENTATIVES UTILIZED THE HOUSE POST OFFICE TO OBTAIN CASH FOR THEMSELVES FROM THEIR CAMPAIGN FUND ACCOUNTS AND FROM OFFICE ACCOUNTS APPROPRIATED TO THEM FOR POSTAL EXPENSES. [ ] ADVISED THAT EVIDENCE EXISTS WHICH INDICATES THAT CHECKS FROM VARIOUS REPRESENTATIVE'S CAMPAIGN FUND ACCOUNTS WERE WRITTEN OUT TO THE HOUSE POST OFFICE FOR POSTAGE EXPENSES. THESE CHECKS WERE THEN CASHED BY THE HOUSE

b6
b7C

POST OFFICE FOR THE FULL AMOUNT AND THE MONEY PROVIDED TO THE HOUSE STAFFER WHO PRESENTED THE CHECK. [ ] STATED THAT THE AFOREMENTIONED INDIVIDUALS COOPERATING WITH THIS INVESTIGATION BELIEVE THAT THIS MONEY WAS THEN GIVEN DIRECTLY TO THE REPRESENTATIVE.

ADDITIONALLY, THERE ARE ALLEGATIONS THAT CERTAIN REPRESENTATIVES MISUSED THEIR APPROPRIATED POSTAL EXPENSE ACCOUNTS. THIS WAS DONE BY ISSUING VOUCHERS FOR POSTAL EXPENSES AND THEN HAVING THE HOUSE POST OFFICE REDEEM THESE VOUCHERS FOR CASH. THESE FUNDS ALSO WERE ALLEGEDLY PROVIDED TO THE REPRESENTATIVE. [ ] ADVISED THAT THESE AFOREMENTIONED MISUSES OF THE HOUSE POST OFFICE WOULD BE FALSE STATEMENTS AND COULD BE IN VIOLATION OF 18 USC, SECTION 1001.

THE SECOND AREA OF THE INVESTIGATION INVOLVES ALLEGATIONS THAT SOME MEMBERS USED UNITED STATES POST OFFICE BOXES TO CIRCUMVENT CAMPAIGN FUND LAWS. [ ] STATED THAT REPRESENTATIVES ARE ALLOWED TO MAINTAIN POST OFFICE BOXES, FREE OF CHARGE, TO RECEIVE U.S. MAIL. THESE BOXES WERE INITIALLY SET UP TO ALLOW THE SPEEDY RECEIPT OF MAIL BY THE REPRESENTATIVE AS THE MAIL WOULD NOT BE REQUIRED TO BE

PROCESSED THROUGH THE HOUSE POST OFFICE. IT IS THOUGHT THAT THE MAJORITY OF THESE BOXES ARE MAINTAINED AT THE MAIN POST OFFICE OR THE BRENTWOOD STATION. [ ] ADVISED THAT ACCORDING TO INFORMATION AVAILABLE, REPRESENTATIVES HAD CAMPAIGN FUND CONTRIBUTION CHECKS SENT TO THESE POST OFFICE BOXES. THEY WOULD THEN SEND STAFFERS TO RETRIEVE THESE CHECKS FOR THEM. [ ] BELIEVED THAT THE REPRESENTATIVES WERE DOING THIS TO AVOID THE CHECKS BEING SENT DIRECTLY TO THEIR HOUSE OFFICE, WHICH COULD BE A VIOLATION OF 18 USC, SECTION 607.

b7C

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE U.S. ATTORNEY'S OFFICE HAVE REQUESTED THE ASSISTANCE OF THE FBI AS PRIMARY JURISDICTION FOR 18 USC, SECTION 607 LIES WITH THE BUREAU AND, ADDITIONALLY, IT IS ANTICIPATED THAT THERE WILL BE A REQUIREMENT IN THIS MATTER FOR FBI LABORATORY ASSISTANCE. IT IS CONTEMPLATED THAT THE FBI WILL BE THE LEAD INVESTIGATIVE AGENCY WITH REGARD TO THE CAMPAIGN FRAUD VIOLATIONS.

IT IS ANTICIPATED THAT, OVER THE NEXT 30 DAYS, WMFO WILL BE REQUESTED TO OBTAIN CAMPAIGN RECORDS SUBMITTED TO THE FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION, IDENTIFY CAMPAIGN ORGANIZATIONS UTILIZED BY THE CAPTIONED REPRESENTATIVES, AND SUBMIT VARIOUS

5 subpoenaed in postal probe

By Paul M. Rodriguez
D-4 Washington Times

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley was forced yesterday to reveal details of a widened federal investigation into the House Post Office, including grand jury subpoenas for records from three congressmen and two top officers in the House.

The speaker, confronted on the House floor by angry House Republicans, acknowledged but defended the fact that he had kept secret subpoenas issued May 6 by U.S. Attorney Jay E. Stephens to:

- Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, Illinois Democrat and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee;
- Rep. Joe Kolter, Pennsylvania Democrat;
- Rep. Austin J. Murphy, Pennsylvania Democrat;
- Clerk of the House Donald Anderson;
- Werner Brandt, acting House sergeant-at-arms.

The grand jury has been investigating the post office since last fall, when the U.S. Postal Inspection Service reported widespread mismanagement and criminal activities, allegations of embezzlement, illegal narcotic sales and check kiting, and a conspiracy by current and former House Post Office employees to conceal the criminal activities.

Thus far, five current and former postal clerks have either been indicted or have pleaded guilty to a variety of charges, including sales of cocaine, embezzlement and charges of engaging in a conspiracy to hide the wrongdoing.

Congressional and federal law enforcement officials have told The Washington Times that the grand jury is also looking into allegations of "ghost employees," the sale of stamps for cash and the conversion of campaign checks into cash.

The probe also includes whether any laws were broken by having the House Post Office maintain special post office boxes for a select number of senior House lawmakers, including Mr. Rostenkowski, who had campaign funds and other mail collected by postal employees.

Until yesterday, no members had been directly caught up in the ongoing criminal investigation.

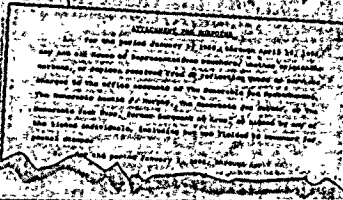

The Washington Times, in a series of articles beginning Jan. 22, first revealed details of the grand jury probe and the contents of a major investigation by the Postal Inspection Service.

POSTAL

The subpoenas, which covered the period between Jan. 1, 1986, and April 15, 1992, were for expense vouchers by the members, their offices, and the former sergeant-at-arms.

Vouchers, which are paid by the House Finance Office operated by Mr. Anderson, are needed to buy any goods and services that are not purchased from the House supply store.

Of particular interest to the grand jury were voucher records involving the purchases of stamps and other items that could be purchased at the post office, an independent contractor for the U.S. Postal Service.

The subpoenas had to be produced when the House voted 324-3 for a Republican resolution demanding them and an explanation from Mr. Foley on why the chamber had not been immediately informed as provided by House rules.

In an extraordinary move, Mr. Foley apologized from the speaker's chair for not informing his Republican counterparts.

"There was no slight intended in any way," Mr. Foley said. "I take that responsibility on myself. In the future to avoid what was in this case a failure in staff communications."

Republicans, including House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois, seized on the subpoena issue as yet another example of Mr. Foley's inability to work in a bipartisan way and avoid confusion in the House.

"First and foremost, with respect to real critical matters of this nature, we were to be simultaneously informed and brought up to speed on these [types of] matters so we could work with one another in good faith," Mr. Michel said.

"That hasn't taken place," he said. "I've got to know who's to communicate with me on matters of this kind." Mr. Michel said. "Now if there had been one instance of slippage, you know, we can forgive and look for another day. But it's a pattern, so we have no course but to air it publicly as we are today."

Mr. Foley was not defended by Democratic colleagues already plagued by scandals involving their leadership's failure to properly manage the now-closed House bank.

The speaker repeated several times his apology but said he had done nothing improper. "The rules were being observed," he said.

At first, Mr. Foley was willing to release information on only three of the subpoenas. But after persistent Republican questions as to how many more had been issued and discussed with Mr. Stephens, the speaker acknowledged there were five in total, including the one belonging to Mr. Rostenkowski.

Rep. Joe Kolter

Minority Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia said Republicans would not have found out about the subpoenas if questions about them had not been raised by a reporter. He said that, contrary to Mr. Foley's assertions that Republicans only had to ask, "the fact is that since we did not know, it's a little difficult for us to ask."

A spokesman for Mr. Rostenkowski said the congressman did not reveal he had been subpoenaed because it was "so unspecific" that he did not know what the grand jury was investigating.

"We weren't sure at first whether the subpoena pertained to the House bank issue or whether it had to do with the [House] Post Office," said Patrick Jones, a spokesman for the 16-term chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means panel.

"I'm not worried. I don't think this is something to worry about," Mr. Jones added. "One thing you can't say about Rostenkowski is that he's corrupt. He's not corrupt."

Mr. Kolter, a Pittsburgh-area Democrat who lost his primary bid last month for a sixth term, said in a prepared statement that his political opponents had leaked information about his connection to the federal investigation which he did not know about until the subpoena was served.

Mr. Kolter ran last in a three-way Democratic primary won by a former TV news anchor, Ron Klunk. "I welcome this investigation because I have done nothing wrong," Mr. Kolter said.

Mr. Murphy said that based on the type of information requested, "I do not believe my office is the subject or target of any inquiry."

Robert V. Rota, who resigned as postmaster last month as a result of the scandal, has testified before the grand jury.

Text of Stephens subpoena

This is the text of the subpoena and covering notice delivered to the clerk of the House of Representatives from U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens:

The attached subpoena requires you to produce certain documents and records to a federal grand jury. The grand jury has determined that it needs these documents and records in order to perform its duty to investigate possible violations of federal criminal law.

The materials covered by this subpoena must be collected and preserved without alteration or tampering. Since the documents called for in the subpoena may be submitted for forensic tests, such as fingerprint and handwriting analysis, they must be carefully collected in a manner that minimizes unnecessary handling and preserves their physical integrity.

Postal Aide Says He Exchanged Vouchers From Rostenkowski

By Michael York
and Kenneth J. Cooper
Washington Post Staff Writers

A supervisor at the House Post Office has told federal prosecutors that he improperly exchanged postage vouchers from House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-Ill.) for cash, in amounts that varied from several hundred dollars to more than $2,000, according to sources familiar with the grand jury investigation.

The supervisor, James C. Smith, who has been granted immunity from prosecution by U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens, alleged that the cash transactions totaled between $18,000 and $20,000 over the last five years, sources said. House records show Rostenkowski has submitted postage vouchers totaling more than $24,000 since 1986.

Vouchers are essentially purchase orders drawn on the office accounts of members of Congress and are used to buy goods and services for official purposes from various congressional facilities, including the House Post Office.

Knowingly converting office funds to personal use could constitute a crime, but sources said yesterday that prosecutors are still seeking to determine whether money obtained through the post office was used for personal expenses. If money was used for official office expenses, sources suggested, it would be considered more of a technical infraction for which criminal prosecution would be unlikely.

Rostenkowski's spokesman said yesterday that Rostenkowski had not received any cash in return for postage vouchers. He said the congressman's staff has not reconciled the office records to verify that stamps were received for the vouchers, but he said all of the subpoenaed records have been turned over to the grand jury.

Asked last week whether he or an aide had signed the vouchers, Rostenkowski said: "I sign vouchers."

Rostenkowski was among three House members who received subpoenas three weeks ago for office records, including records of stamp purchases. It was the first indication that a grand jury investigating alleged criminal violations at the House Post Office was focusing on House members.

Although House members are allowed to mail letters and packages free simply by using envelopes or address labels with their printed signatures, this franking privilege does not extend to all forms of mail. House members must pay for overseas mail, certified and registered mail. In addition, they must use stamps to return pre-addressed envelopes, such as those that accompany invitations.

Smith, who has worked for the House Post Office more than 20 years, is on leave from his position as supervisor of "accountable paper." Sources said that information provided by Smith led to the issuance of subpoenas on May 6 for office records of Rostenkowski as well as Reps. Austin J. Murphy and Joe Kolter, both Pennsylvania Democrats.

In addition, the grand jury subpoenaed records from House Clerk Donald K. Anderson and acting Sergeant-at-Arms Werner W. Brandt. Among the records sought was a statement of House police regarding the proper use of stamp allotments for congressional offices.

Vouchers are essentially purchase orders drawn on office accounts of members of Congress and used to buy goods and services for official purposes from congressional facilities.

Those subpoenas were made public during the House session on May 14. Today House Administration Committee Chairman Charlie Rose (D-N.C.) and the committee's ranking minority member, Rep. William M.

Thomas (R-Calif.), are scheduled to report on the progress of the House task force investigation of the post office.

Although Smith has worked as a patronage employee sponsored by Rostenkowski, a source close to Rostenkowski said, the congressman has seen Smith only about four times.

Smith's lawyer, Kenneth M. Robinson, confirmed that Smith is cooperating with the investigation, but declined to comment further. Sources also have said the grand jury is seeking to determine whether some members converted campaign funds to personal use through cashing checks at the post office, or by purchasing stamps at the post office and then redeeming the stamps for cash.

Rostenkowski has said his office has spent thousands of dollars in postage on overseas mail. He told The Washington Post on May 19, "I mail a lot. I mail a lot."

Congressional Quarterly reported on Monday that Rostenkowski has spent $24,776 on postage since 1986. CQ also found that Rostenkowski's reported expenditures on stamps were considerably higher than that of other members of the House leadership. For example, CQ said Majority Whip David E. Bonior (D-Mich.) bought $145 in stamps between 1986 and 1991. Rostenkowski's reported expenditures were more than twice as much as any other member of the Illinois House delegation, CQ reported.

A review of Rostenkowski's records by The Post showed that the congressman spent more than $20,000 in 10 postage transactions of between $1,400 and $3,000 between 1986 and 1991.

One of the Rostenkowski vouchers, dated March 17, 1988, was for $3,000 worth of 22-cent stamps, an amount that does not work out evenly. Several of the vouchers simply stated the amounts, but did not itemize the purchases. For instance, purchases of $2,100 on Aug. 7, 1986, and $2,800 on April 8, 1987, were listed as being for postage stamps.

Rostenkowski Calls Allegations Untrue

Citing Ongoing House Post Office Probe, Lawmaker Limits Comment

By Edward Walsh
and Kenneth J. Cooper
Washington Post Staff Writers

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-Ill.) yesterday described as "totally untrue" allegations by a House Post Office employee that Rostenkowski's office received cash in exchange for official expense vouchers written for postage stamps.

"Since there is an ongoing investigation, I will have nothing to say beyond this statement," Rostenkowski told reporters at his district office in Chicago. He refused to answer questions.

Sources have said that James C. Smith, who is on leave as director of the House Post Office's counter clerks, has told federal prosecutors that cash transactions totaled between $18,000 and $20,000 over the past five years. U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens has granted Smith immunity from prosecution.

"First, recent allegations in the press are totally untrue. I am confident that this inquiry will conclude that the rumors are totally without foundation," Rostenkowski said in the statement.

"Second, as I've said before, I'm cooperating fully with the U.S. attorney and have given them all the records they requested. And finally, I hope I am not going to be subjected to continued groundless innuendo and hearsay from anonymous sources in the press," he said.

A federal grand jury has subpoenaed expense vouchers from 1986 to April 1992 for Rostenkowski, Rep. Austin J. Murphy (D-Pa.), Rep. Joe Kolter (D-Pa.) and former House sergeant-at-arms Jack Russ. Russ, who ran the House Bank, had few official expenses during that period, based on a Washington Post review of expense reports compiled by the House Clerk's office.

In Washington, the House was notified of three new subpoenas that apparently are unrelated to the May 6 subpoenas to Rostenkowski, Murphy and Kolter.

Acting Postmaster Michael J. Shinay confirmed that the subpoenas were served to three employees.

A source identified two of the employees as Griff Williams, a passport clerk and son of Rep. Pat Williams (D-Mont.), and Kimberly C. Scrogum, who was a secretary to then-Postmaster Robert Rota late last year. The third employee, whose name could not be learned, was described as a passport clerk.

Williams and the third employee, according to the source, have been drivers whose work involves the pickup and delivery of passports and visas for congressional trips abroad.

The source suggested the latest subpoenas were directed at exploring allegations of ghost employees and the unlawful use of official vehicles at the post office.

Rep. Charlie Rose (D-N.C.), chairman of the House Administration Committee and a leader of a bipartisan task force that is conducting a separate investigation of the post office, said in the panel's preliminary report that it would make its final report next month, after the May 30 deadline. One source of delay has been Stephens's threat to revoke Smith's immunity if he testified to task force investigators earlier this month.

Rose said he had "seen no evidence of ghost employees at the House Post Office," as some news reports have alleged.

Hill Aide Says He Carried Campaign Mail

Congressman's Son Among 3 Subpoenaed in House Post Office Probe

Associated Press

Two House employees were ordered to pick up and deliver mailed campaign contributions to offices in the Capitol complex, despite prohibitions against receiving political monies in government offices, one of the couriers said yesterday.

Griff Williams, who worked at the House Post Office as a congressional—not Postal Service—staff member, said he picked up campaign mail, sent to a regular post office outside the Capitol grounds, for five lawmakers for several months. He said he refused to continue because he questioned the propriety of the action.

Both federal law and House rules restrict the receipt of campaign contributions in government offices. In addition, employees are barred from political work as part of their official duties. Government equipment, such as the House postal vehicles used by the couriers, cannot be used for campaign work.

Williams, the son of Rep. Pat Williams (D-Mont.), is one of three people subpoenaed this week by a federal grand jury investigating operations at the House Post Office.

"It was time-consuming in an already busy schedule, it wasn't in my job descriptions and, because I had been around politics all my life, it just felt like there was something a little inappropriate," Williams said in an interview.

Williams, who spent most of his work hours assisting lawmakers and others in obtaining passports and visas, said he was regularly ordered by post office chief of staff Joanna O'Rourke, who is on medical leave and could not be reached for comment, to go to a post office here and pick up mail at boxes rented by campaign organizations for five House members. The pickups were on official work time, Williams said.

tained the postal box because he "never got involved in campaign contributions." When he learned of the courier service, Mavroules said, "I stopped that practice immediately."

Williams said he brought the mail back to the main post office in the Capitol complex, where someone from the lawmaker's office usually would pick it up. Williams said "it was my assumption" that the mail included political donations.

Others subpoenaed this week were James Jenkins, who also worked as a courier, and Kimberly Scrogum, a secretary to former postmaster Robert Rota. Neither Jenkins nor Scrogum could be reached for comment.

He identified the five as Reps. Nicholas Mavroules (D-Mass.), Dennis M. Hertel (D-Mich.), Mary Rose Oakar (D-Ohio), Jim Moody (D-Wis.) and Edward F. Feighan (D-Ohio).

Oakar has said previously that she rented a post office box as an address for campaign contributions but stopped the practice immediately after learning that "a courier on his regular rounds to the post office was picking up mail from this post office box."

Feighan aide Dan Clark said in April, when stories first appeared about the courier service, that the lawmaker used the post office box for campaign contributions. A campaign volunteer would retrieve mail from the box and send it to Feighan's Ohio campaign office, Clark said. Feighan is not seeking reelection.

Moody spokesman Marcus Kunian said when his office learned that House Post Office employees were picking up the mail and bringing it to the lawmaker's congressional office he immediately ordered it stopped.

Hertel spokeswoman Mary Conklin said, "We never asked for the service."

Mavroules said he was unaware that a former staff aide had ob-

Oakar Wins Primary Despite Hill Scandals

Other House Contests Test Impact of Rights Act

By Kenneth J. Cooper
Washington Post Staff Writer

Rep. Mary Rose Oakar (D-Ohio) yesterday defied conventional political wisdom and headed off primary challengers despite widespread anti-Congress sentiment in her Cleveland area district.

Oakar, seeking a ninth term, led a seven-candidate field with less than a majority of votes, according to incomplete returns late last night. Her principal competitor and the apparent runner-up, Cuyahoga County Commissioner Timothy F. Hagan, conceded defeat after 11 p.m.

About six of 10 ballots were going to candidates other than Oakar, but Hagan, an intense intellectual with liberal politics, was hurt by an unexpectedly large vote for minor candidates in the race.

It appeared that Oakar, who had 213 overdrafts at the now-closed House Bank, would become the first of the top 22 "abusers" of checking privileges to survive a primary challenge. Rep. Charles A. Hayes (D-Ill.) and Rep. Bill Alexander (D-Ark.) were defeated in earlier primaries.

Besides her bad checks, which Hagan featured in a television advertisement late in the campaign, Oakar has chaired the House Administration subcommittee that oversees the House Post Office, which has been embroiled in a grand jury investigation.

In southern Ohio, another House member dogged by the House Bank scandal was leading in a primary race between two Republican incumbents. Partial returns showed Rep. Bob McEwen, who had 166 bad checks, defeating Rep. Clarence E. Miller.

In a North Carolina runoff between the top Democratic finishers in the May 5 primary, Eva Clayton, a Warren County commissioner, handily defeated Walter B. Jones Jr., the son of a retiring House member. Clayton, who is black, had been expected to beat Jones, who is white, in the heavily minority district created under the Voting Rights Act.

she is expected to become the first North Carolina woman elected to a full term in Congress and one of the first black members to represent the state since George Henry White left office in 1901.

Clayton told supporters in Rocky Mount that the election had been "a people's process," but Jones compared the creation of the predominantly minority district to "going back to segregation," the Associated Press reported.

Besides Ohio and California, congressional primaries also were being held in Alabama, Iowa, Montana, New Jersey and New Mexico.

The cluster of congressional elections was likely to provide clues about the changing composition of the House, which many observers expect to get 100 or more new members. It is already certain to have at least 65 newcomers, having lost nine members to primary defeats and 56 others to voluntary retirements, a new high since World War II.

More incumbents, mostly but not all Democrats, are considered vulnerable because they had a number of overdrafts at the House Bank. The expected turnover, coupled with redistricting that generally favors Republican strongholds in the suburbs, South and West, has raised hopes in the GOP minority of breaking 38 years of continuous Democratic control of the House.

Political analysts have predicted that the Voting Rights Act, which has compelled states to draw more districts with large minority populations, is likely to result in a large increase in black and Hispanic members.

During a short campaign in a redrawn district, Oakar emphasized her record of constituent service, bringing federal dollars to the Cleveland area and keeping government jobs there. She exhibited her skills as a campaigner with a personal touch, and loaned her campaign $135,000.

In Alabama, three elected officials were vying in a Democratic field of six candidates to become that state's first black member of Congress since Jeremiah Haralson in 1876. Each of the three had a different geographic base in a district shaped by the Voting Rights Act: state Sen. Earl F. Hilliard of Birmingham, state Sen. Henry Sanders of Selma and Montgomery County Commissioner John Knight.

In the Democratic primary for a Senate seat from Alabama, incumbent Richard C. Shelby defeated Chris McNair, a Jefferson County commissioner whose daughter was among four black girls killed when a Baptist church was bombed in 1963, and two other challengers.

Ex-Postal Clerk In House Guilty

A former clerk at the House Post Office yesterday pleaded guilty to embezzlement and drug charges and promised to cooperate with a grand jury investigation of alleged corruption on Capitol Hill.

Wendell Magruder, 33, was ordered held without bond pending the outcome of a urine test. U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson said she was concerned about Magruder's admission that he sold crack cocaine, cocaine powder and marijuana to former co-workers in the Post Office.

"I'm concerned about the drugs," Johnson said. "It is an ever-present danger to this community."

Under his agreement with federal prosecutors, Magruder pleaded guilty to embezzling more than $13,000 from his stamp drawer at the House Post Office, concealing a material fact from investigators and conspiring to distribute drugs. In return, prosecutors agreed to drop a fourth charge, distribution of cocaine.

Magruder is the fifth employee of the House Post Office to plead guilty to corruption charges. Johnson scheduled sentencing for Aug. 28.

Immunity bid fails for House postal official

Democrats prevail in vote

By Paul M. Rodriguez
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

House Democrats yesterday blocked Republican efforts to get immunity from prosecution for the House post office's chief of staff, whose testimony could taint some lawmakers and top Democratic officials.

Democrats, concerned over a pending criminal probe, outvoted Republicans on the House Administration Committee 12-4 to reject the immunity request for Joanna O'Rourke.

Many trails lead back to her, Rep. Pat Roberts, the Kansas Republican who sought the immunity, told his colleagues.

Her testimony, if willing or full, will either corroborate or not corroborate many of the allegations of criminal wrongdoing and mismanagement at the post office, he said. Under the proposal, Mrs.

O'Rourke's testimony before a special House task force investigating the post office could not be used against her in a court of law. Congress would have to obtain approval of such immunity from a U.S. District Court judge.

But senior Democratic members of the panel said they were concerned about hampering the ongoing criminal probe being conducted by U.S. Attorney Jay Byrnes and a federal grand jury.

Rep. Steny Hoyer, Maryland Democrat, referring to the Iran-Contra scandal, cited problems in the past when Congress has sought and obtained court approval for immunity of witnesses under criminal investigation.

"We have had bad experiences," said Mr. Hoyer, who is also the House Democratic Caucus chairman.

"We are not a criminal investigatory committee and the grant of immunity could well undermine the criminal prosecution and investigation that is ongoing," he said.

"I will tell you," Mr. Hoyer said in forceful terms, "if Joanna O'Rourke committed crimes, I want to see her prosecuted, indicted, convicted and incarcerated if necessary."

"This has been a blight on the House," Mr. Hoyer said in reference to the ridicule the House has suffered because of the post office scandal and the bad-check debacle at the shuttered House bank.

"I'm for indicting, convicting and incarcerating every person who has undermined the honesty of this institution," he said.

The Administration Committee, chaired by Rep. Charlie Rose, North Carolina Democrat, in February began a bipartisan task force investigation of allegations of cocaine sales embezzlement and mismanagement at the post office.

Mr. Roberts' task force, co-chairman with Mr. Rose, said yesterday that so far, 61 witnesses have provided testimony. But "if the task force cannot conduct a thorough investigation and speak with the post office chief of staff, Congress is unwilling or unable to investigate its own affairs," he said.

In a partisan snipe at Democrats, Mr. Roberts also said that "at no time did any witness make allegations of

see HOUSE, page A8

HOUSE

a Republican staffer or a Republican" having committed any wrongdoing at the post office.

"In fact, Republicans at no time had anything to do with [running or managing] the post office," he said.

Since Jan. 22, The Washington Times has published a number of articles on alleged wrongdoing at the post office, as well as allegations that members of Congress converted stamps for cash, used post office employees for non-postal functions, circumvented restrictions on "franked" mail and made use of special post office boxes to collect campaign contributions.

The Times has reported that unnamed House members have converted campaign checks into cash at the post office and also cashed personal checks there when they no longer could do so at the House bank.

Postmaster Robert V. Rota was forced to resign in mid-March as a result of the publicized practices, many of which violate House rules and possibly break criminal and campaign laws.

Mr. Stephens already has secured guilty pleas from five former post office employees, including one supervisor.

Along with those five former employees, James C. Smith, an assistant postmaster for accounts, reportedly is cooperating with Mr. Stephens' investigation.

Based on such cooperation, Mr. Stephens recently issued subpoenas to three Democratic lawmakers for their office accounts going back to 1986, including their records involving purchases of postage stamps. The lawmakers, who are said to be complying with the requests, include Reps. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, and Joe Kolter and Austin Murphy, both of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. O'Rourke, who recently invoked her rights against self-incrimination during an appearance before the task force, is reportedly willing to cooperate with either the House task force or Mr. Stephens' office, but only if granted immunity from prosecution.

Rep. Leon Panetta, California Democrat, raised concerns shared by both Democrats and Republicans that "providing immunity to anybody should only be done if we have a very clear indication that [they] will testify."

John Napier, a Democratic lawyer on the panel, said he was not aware of any guarantees that Mrs. O'Rourke would testify fully about her knowledge of alleged wrongdoing at the post office.

He also raised questions — based on the experiences of giving former White House aides Oliver North and John Poindexter immunity from prosecution in the Iran-Contra scandal — that convictions might be difficult to obtain if the committee sought immunity for Mrs. O'Rourke. The convictions of Col. North and Adm. Poindexter, national security advisers to President Reagan, were overturned.

Mr. Roberts acknowledged it was "a tough call" but argued that without Mrs. O'Rourke's immunized testimony, there are "great discrepancies in the testimony of the 61 witnesses."

"We're going to have a report with holes in it ... and I'm not sure what good that report is going to do as a result," he said.

The six-member task force is scheduled to make a report on its investigation to the House on July 6.

As House Post Office Prepares for Historic Change (Bringing in USPS), Doubts Raised

By Karen Foerster

Five months after reports of embezzlement and drug dealing in the House Post Office hit the headlines, the new Postmaster is preparing his staff for a historic change — shifting major parts of the operation to the US Postal Service.

Also, the Postmaster, Michael Shinay, himself a veteran of the USPS, said his House employees recently passed two surprise audits with flying colors.

The recently reorganized Post Office is also testing a new Saturday work schedule that is expected to save the House more than $37,000 in overtime each year.

The surprise audits came last Tuesday and Wednesday when the USPS dropped in to check the money and stamp drawers of six House postal windows located in the Ford Annex building and the Capitol.

The money count at one station was just $3.25 short. The second station actually came out about $60 over.

"That's more than acceptable considering you're dealing with nickels and dimes," said Shinay, who was named three months ago by Speaker Tom Foley (D-Wash) to head the House Post Office on a temporary basis. "I was real pleased with the audits. I felt great for the employees."

Roll Call first published reports last August of a postal worker who allegedly stole several thousand dollars from the Post Office and fled to the Caribbean. Capitol Police investigators launched a probe into the theft and possible other crimes within the Post Office. The nineteenth day beginning after the date of adoption of this resolution, the functions and entities specified in subsection (d) shall be transferred to the Director of Non-legislative and Financial Services.

Subsection (d) reads: "The function and entities referred to in subsection (a) are: Inside Mail and Internal Mail Operations (including coordination with postal substations to be operated by the United States Postal Service)."

But Rep. Bill Thomas (R-Calif), a member of the Post Office Task Force, said Thursday that bringing the USPS to the House is not a certainty and is being reviewed by the task force.

But in preparation of a possible USPS takeover of outside mail operations, Shinay said his staff this week is conducting an accounting of all transactions.

Shinay added that a USPS changeover would mean the elimination of 14 current positions. He said he hoped the remaining 134 positions could be absorbed into the reorganized House operation.

Another change that the House Post Office implemented last week was a new compressed Saturday work schedule.

The Post Office has reduced its Saturday hours, cutting from two to one the number of mail pick-ups and deliveries to House offices. Mail will now be delivered and dropped off at 11:30 a.m. every Saturday. In the past, there were two deliveries and drop-offs, at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Post Office will also trim three hours from its Saturday workday, with the Longworth mail room open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The new schedule, which will be tested for about five weeks, is expected to save about $3,100 every month in overtime costs, or about $37,225 a year, according to Post Office officials.

To compensate for the reduced hours, Members can drop off franked mail in a box outside the Longworth stamp counter. Members, however, are asked to have their franked mail ready for the 11:30 pick-up.

Meanwhile, House postal employees

USPS then took over the investigation along with the US Attorney's Office.

Then, in early February, the Washington Times reported that the probe included allegations of drug sales to Hill employees.

Former House Postmaster Bob Rota resigned in the wake of the scandal in March, and Shinay, who was executive assistant to the US Postmaster General at USPS, took over in April.

In an interview this week, Shinay said he is uncertain how long he will remain with the House and is awaiting a final report by a Congressional bipartisan task force reviewing the Post Office scandal. That report is due on July 6.

The task force, made up of six members of the House Administration Committee, is also reviewing details of the changeover—bringing the USPS to the House to handle outside mail operations. Internal mail delivery would continue to be under House management.

While the changeover appeared to be a fait accompli under a sweeping reform package passed in April, at least one Member says that bringing in the USPS is not definite, and Shinay himself expressed some uncertainty.

Among other things, the reform package called for the elimination of the Postmaster position by July 8 and the use of the USPS for outside mail operations. The bill also established the position of Director of Non-legislative and Financial Services, who would oversee all financial House operations including internal mail operations.

The exact language of the bill reads: "As soon as practicable, but not later than the

Rostenkowski's gumshoe seeks alibi at post office

By Paul M. Rodriguez
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

A private investigator working for Rep. Dan Rostenkowski has been calling House post office employees asking for information that might lift a cloud of suspicion dangling over her client.

The investigator, lawyer Barbara Rowen, has been calling postal employees in an attempt to determine whether it was Mr. Rostenkowski or one of his top aides who had the most dealings with the scandal-plagued post office, according to congressional officials who spoke with The Washington Times.

Ms. Rowen's questions seem to suggest that one particular aide to Mr. Rostenkowski may have acted improperly, according to one of the officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Ms. Rowen deferred a reporter's call to Washington lawyer Stanley Brand.

Mr. Rostenkowski, Illinois Democrat and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, hired Mr. Brand after a federal grand jury earlier this year subpoenaed him to produce six years of office expense records.

The grand jury is investigating allegations of criminal wrongdoing at the House post office.

U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens, who is running the grand jury probe, has sought not only Mr. Rostenkowski's records from 1986 to '92, but also those of Pennsylvania Democratic Reps. Austin Murphy and Joe Kolter.

Mr. Stephens also requested the three lawmakers' records on stamp purchases during the six-year period. All three members, who are said to be cooperating, have denied any wrongdoing.

House postal employees, already under intense scrutiny because five former co-workers have pleaded guilty to illegal drug charges and embezzlement, have complained to acting House postmaster Michael Shinnay about Ms. Rowen's calls to their homes and during office hours.

"The postmaster had to tell her to stop making phone calls during the day to the office," one official familiar with the situation told The Times. "He [the postmaster] told her to also not come into the post office and talk to the employees anymore," the official said.

The grand jury is looking into allegations that some current and former lawmakers improperly sold postage stamps for cash, converted campaign checks for cash and cashed personal checks after having lost that privilege at the now-closed House bank.

The Washington Post has reported that James C. Smith, an assistant postmaster for accounts now on leave from the House post office, has told investigators that Mr. Rostenkowski converted about $20,000 in office stamps for cash. The congressman has denied these charges.

Calls to Mr. Shinnay and Mr. Brand were not returned yesterday.

This investigation, which was initiated upon a request for a preliminary investigation from the Department of Justice, centered around information that retiring Members from the House of Representatives were leaving office with large amounts of postage stamps obtained from the House Post Office. This matter was eventually closed as prosecution was declined by the Public Integrity Section of the Department of Justice due to lack of criminal intent on the part of the Members involved.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS COMMUNICATION IS TO PROVIDE
BACKGROUND INFORMATION TO FBIHQ REGARDING INDIVIDUALS WHO HAVE PLEADED GUILTY TO VARIOUS CHARGES PRIOR TO THE INVOLVEMENT OF WMFO IN THIS MATTER, TO IDENTIFY TO FBIHQ INDIVIDUALS WHO WILL BE CHARGED IN THIS MATTER IN THE NEAR FUTURE AND TO UPDATE
FBIHQ ON THE RESULTS OF CURRENT INVESTIGATION.

FOR THE INFORMATION OF FBIHQ, THIS MATTER WAS INITIALLY
PREDICATED UPON A COMPLAINT FROM THE STAFF OF THE U.S. HOUSE
OF REPRESENTATIVES POST OFFICE (HPO) TO THE U.S. CAPITOL
POLICE IN APRIL OF 1991. THE SUBSTANCE OF THIS COMPLAINT WAS THAT THE STAMP AND CURRENCY DRAWER OF AN AWOL HPO STAMP CLERK
WAS SHORT APPROXIMATELY $7000.00. THIS INITIAL COMPLAINT AND SUBSEQUENT AUDIT CONDUCTED BY THE CAPITOL POLICE LED TO THE NOTIFICATION AND INVOLVEMENT OF THE U.S. POSTAL INSPECTION SERVICE (USPIS) IN JULY OF 1991. AUDITS AND OTHER INVESTIGATION CONDUCTED BY THE USPIS FOUND THAT 9 OF THE 12 EMPLOYEES RESPONSIBLE FOR CASH AND STAMPS AT THE HPO WERE SHORT A TOTAL OF APPROXIMATELY $37,000.00 OUT OF A TOTAL CASH AND STAMP ACCOUNTABILITY OF APPROXIMATELY $475,000.00. THE USPIS AND THE CAPITOL POLICE DETERMINED THAT CERTAIN HPO EMPLOYEES WERE INVOLVED IN THE EMBEZZLEMENT OF GOVERNMENT FUNDS AND OTHER ILLEGAL ACTIVITIES SUCH AS DRUG TRAFFICKING, CHECK KITING, FAILURE TO WORK OVERTIME THAT WAS CLAIMED, BACKDATING OF MAIL AND THE USE OF SPECIAL HPO ACCOUNTS TO "EXPRESS MAIL" PERSONAL ITEMS.

PER THEIR PLEA AGREEMENTS, THE ABOVE NAMED INDIVIDUALS ALL AGREED TO COOPERATE FULLY WITH THE GOVERNMENT IN ITS INVESTIGATION OF THE HPO.

THE INTERVIEWS OF THESE INDIVIDUALS AS WELL AS INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION CONDUCTED BY THE CAPITOL POLICE AND THE USPIS DETERMINED, IN ADDITION TO THESE INDIVIDUALS AND CHARGES, THAT THE MANAGEMENT OF THE HPO AND VARIOUS REPRESENTATIVES WERE INVOLVED IN CERTAIN ILLEGAL ACTIVITIES. THESE ILLEGAL ACTIVITIES INCLUDED THE IMPROPER CONVERSION OF U.S. FUNDS ALLOCATED FOR POSTAL EXPENSES TO CASH FOR THE REPRESENTATIVE'S PERSONAL USE AND THE UTILIZATION OF THE HPO

THE PURPOSE OF THIS COMMUNICATION IS TO PROVIDE
BACKGROUND INFORMATION TO FBIHQ REGARDING INDIVIDUALS WHO HAVE PLEADED GUILTY TO VARIOUS CHARGES PRIOR TO THE INVOLVEMENT OF WMFO IN THIS MATTER, TO IDENTIFY TO FBIHQ INDIVIDUALS WHO WILL BE CHARGED IN THIS MATTER IN THE NEAR FUTURE AND TO UPDATE
FBIHQ ON THE RESULTS OF CURRENT INVESTIGATION.

FOR THE INFORMATION OF FBIHQ, THIS MATTER WAS INITIALLY
PREDICATED UPON A COMPLAINT FROM THE STAFF OF THE U.S. HOUSE
OF REPRESENTATIVES POST OFFICE (HPO) TO THE U.S. CAPITOL
POLICE IN APRIL OF 1991. THE SUBSTANCE OF THIS COMPLAINT WAS THAT THE STAMP AND CURRENCY DRAWER OF AN AWOL HPO STAMP CLERK
WAS SHORT APPROXIMATELY $7000.00. THIS INITIAL COMPLAINT AND

SUBSEQUENT AUDIT CONDUCTED BY THE CAPITOL POLICE LED TO THE NOTIFICATION AND INVOLVEMENT OF THE U.S. POSTAL INSPECTION SERVICE (USPIS) IN JULY OF 1991. AUDITS AND OTHER INVESTIGATION CONDUCTED BY THE USPIS FOUND THAT 9 OF THE 12 EMPLOYEES RESPONSIBLE FOR CASH AND STAMPS AT THE HPO WERE SHORT A TOTAL OF APPROXIMATELY $37,000.00 OUT OF A TOTAL CASH AND STAMP ACCOUNTABILITY OF APPROXIMATELY $475,000.00. THE USPIS AND THE CAPITOL POLICE DETERMINED THAT CERTAIN HPO EMPLOYEES WERE INVOLVED IN THE EMBEZZLEMENT OF GOVERNMENT FUNDS AND OTHER ILLEGAL ACTIVITIES SUCH AS DRUG TRAFFICKING, CHECK KITING, FAILURE TO WORK OVERTIME THAT WAS CLAIMED, BACKDATING OF MAIL AND THE USE OF SPECIAL HPO ACCOUNTS TO "EXPRESS MAIL" PERSONAL ITEMS.

1. [REDACTED]

PER THEIR PLEA AGREEMENTS, THE ABOVE NAMED INDIVIDUALS ALL AGREED TO COOPERATE FULLY WITH THE GOVERNMENT IN ITS INVESTIGATION OF THE HPO.

THE INTERVIEWS OF THESE INDIVIDUALS AS WELL AS INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION CONDUCTED BY THE CAPITOL POLICE AND THE USPIS DETERMINED, IN ADDITION TO THESES INDIVIDUALS AND CHARGES, THAT THE MANAGEMENT OF THE HPO AND VARIOUS REPRESENTATIVES WERE INVOLVED IN CERTAIN ILLEGAL ACTIVITIES.
THESE ILLEGAL ACTIVITIES INCLUDED THE IMPROPER CONVERSION OF U.S. FUNDS ALLOCATED FOR POSTAL EXPENSES TO CASH FOR THE REPRESENTATIVE'S PERSONAL USE AND THE UTILIZATION OF THE HPO TO CONVERT CHECKS, DRAWN ON THE REPRESENTATIVE'S CAMPAIGN FUND ACCOUNTS, TO CASH FOR THE REPRESENTATIVE'S PERSONAL USE.

THIS SECOND PHASE OF THIS INVESTIGATION HAS IDENTIFIED OTHER INDIVIDUALS WHO HAVE BEEN INVOLVED IN THIS SCHEME. AS A RESULT, THE INDICTMENT OF THE FOLLOWING HOUSE STAFFERS CAN BE EXPECTED IN THE NEAR FUTURE:

House postal probers divided

By Paul M. Rodriguez
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

A House task force failed yesterday to reconcile two vastly different and partisan reports on its three-month probe of alleged mismanagement and criminal activity at the House post office.

The bipartisan panel has grown increasingly partisan in recent weeks as its six members have struggled to draft a final report on its closed-door deliberations by July 6, as required by a House resolution.

Rep. Charles Rose, North Carolina Democrat and chairman of the task force, told reporters yesterday that "we hope to have a report out [today] or Thursday by the latest."

He said the schedule was moved forward because of a delay in sharing draft documents, which he characterized as "an exchange of prisoners at the bridge."

Rep. Pat Roberts, Kansas Republican and vice-chairman of the task force, agreed and warned that if there can be no agreement on a single report, "we will vote to report a majority and minority report."

The House Administration Committee, which Mr. Rose heads and Mr. Roberts belongs to, must approve whatever findings the task force wants to report to the full House.

Congressional officials familiar with the behind-the-scenes deliberations said the two draft reports are completely different in scope, context and conclusions. They are about equal length, roughly 100 pages each, double-spaced.

"The only thing [Democrats and Republicans] seem able to agree on is that the post office was a mess and it needs to be totally reorganized," said one of several officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Mr. Rose and Mr. Roberts previously agreed that allegations involving some congressmen and staffers would be referred to the House ethics committee for follow-up investigations of possible wrongdoing.

U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens and a federal grand jury are conducting a separate criminal investigation of alleged embezzlement and illegal narcotic sales at the post office.

Four former clerks and one supervisor were indicted and pleaded guilty to a variety of charges and reportedly are cooperating with the ongoing federal probe. At least one current high-level postal official has reportedly linked some lawmakers to illegal activities.

The task force was created to investigate allegations of wrongdoing at the post office after a series of articles in The Washington Times, beginning Jan. 22, detailing allegations of embezzlement, illegal narcotic sales, padded and falsified payrolls, sale of office stamps for cash, and conversion of campaign checks for cash.

Poll Finds Phone Fraud Rampant

Scam Artists Have Approached 9 Out of 10 People, Survey Indicates

By Alex Pham
 Washington Post Staff Writer

Sonya Louis received a call from a Houston company last month telling her she had won a new car. All she had to do was send $599 to ship it.

Louis, who suffers from the blood disease sickle cell anemia, told the caller she was poor, disabled and could not afford to be swindled. But the caller insisted that the offer was legitimate. Louis had hoped for her own car for so many years that she believed it, according to her mother.

The 29-year-old Californian borrowed the money from her grandmother, who took out a cash advance from her credit card. She even picked out the color of the car, sky blue.

The company stuck around just long enough to take her money.

"She wanted it so badly," said Louis's mother, Zella Elijah, who lives with her daughter in Northridge, Calif. "How could they do that to her?"

As it turns out, telemarketing thieves have approached nine of 10 Americans with such prize schemes, according to the responses to a Louis Harris and Associates survey, to be released today. Three out of 10 answering the survey also said they have responded at some time to these offers.

"It's often the people who can least afford to lose money who get caught," said Linda Golodner, president of the National Consumers League, a District-based nonprofit consumer protection agency that sponsored the survey. "They're desperate, and they really believe they're going to win this time."

The survey, part of a campaign against such fraud, was paid for by a group of companies that often has to pick up the tab for phone schemes, including MasterCard International Inc., MCI Communications Corp., Citibank's credit card subsidiary and Visa USA Inc. The campaign is being sponsored by the National Consumers League.

Survey Indicates Phone Scam Artists Call 9 of 10 Americans

sored by the Consumers League and the Reference Point Foundation of Newark.

The league today also is releasing a list of the top five new phone schemes. Topping the list is a scheme that tries to overcome consumer skepticism about postcards or phone calls that promise "you may already have won" a big prize. Consumers swindled once by bogus prize notifications are contacted again by scam artists posing as "recovery service" operations and offering a second chance to win, or simply offering bigger prizes.

Another scam solicits people to call supposedly toll-free numbers; they end up making expensive overseas calls for useless information on topics such as "Dating Etiquette for the '90s," with the scam artists collecting money for the cost of the call.

A third scam promises to help parents recover child support money from deadbeat ex-spouses at a cost of $40, plus $3.95 for every minute spent on the phone with a "consultant" promising to help the parent.

A fourth scheme involves solicitors who sell goods made by "handicapped" workers. These handicaps often turn out to be not physical, but social—specifically, criminal records, according to the league. The fifth type of fraud bilks investors who hope to buy dirt-cheap Florida land, but get only bogus deeds.

Less than 10 percent of those who say they were swindled report the crime, according to the poll. Consumer advocates argue that if more people reported fraud, more could be done to combat it.

"So many people don't complain because they're embarrassed or think that they don't have the time, so they just let it go," said Shirley Rooker, president of Call for Action Inc., a national consumer hot line company based in the District. "What you should be doing is complain loudly and fiercely when you've been ripped off because that's when things are corrected."

And what should you do to prevent being scammed in the first place?

John Barker, a project adviser with the Consumers League, said the people who are cheated tend to react on impulse. He advised: "Wait. Tell them to send you material. Any legitimate business or charity will send you a form. Then you can think about it."

Rostenkowski, Two Colleagues Refuse to Answer Subpoenas

Democrats Call House Post Office Probe a 'Political Witch Hunt'

By Eric Pianin
Washington Post Staff Writer

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-Ill.) and two other House Democrats who were subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury investigating the House Post Office said yesterday they will refuse to testify. They dismissed the probe as a "political witch hunt."

In a letter to the U.S. attorney here, Rostenkowski, Reps. Joe Kolter (D-Pa.) and Austin J. Murphy (D-Pa.) said they had been exonerated by a congressional inquiry of the post office completed this week and that the grand jury's request that they appear next Tuesday was unwarranted.

"We can only conclude that the subpoenas for us are a product of an overall fishing expedition in an election year," the three Democrats said.

Citing their Fifth Amendment constitutional right against self-incrimination, they said, "We decline to lend any credence to an inquiry that lacks credibility and should be promptly closed."

The three pointedly avoided invoking legislative privilege in refusing to respond to the subpoenas, which were issued Wednesday.

The office of U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens is investigating allegations that some House members received thousands of dollars through transactions portrayed as stamp purchases. The probe began in February after reports of alleged embezzlement and drug dealing by post office employees had embarrassed the House.

litical favors, such as delivering campaign contributions, and that failed to account for the cost of free mailings for members and lobbyists.

The 64-page Democratic report concluded that interviews with more than 60 witnesses found no House members were "credibly alleged to have committed any wrongdoing, by violating either a specific statute or rule of the House." However, the 96-page Republican report suggested that 11 members and four former members—all but one Democrats—were connected to questionable practices, although Republicans later apologized for mistakenly including a Democratic member in that list.

Rostenkowski and the two other Democrats subpoenaed based their decision not to testify in part on the Democratic report's findings that James C. Smith, a postal official, said he had no knowledge of any instances when House members engaged in unlawful or questionable practices—such as exchanging expense vouchers for cash or exchanging stamps for cash.

But Daniel J. Swillinger, special Republican counsel to the congressional task force, said yesterday that it was incorrect for Democrats to say that Smith had exonerated Rostenkowski.

"To say that James Smith in his interview somehow vindicated him [Rostenkowski] is just an outrageous misrepresentation of what occurred," Swillinger said.

Smith was interviewed for about two hours by task force lawyers and investigators on March 9, Swillinger said. After the interview, during which Swillinger said Smith was "very evasive," task force members decided they would have to subpoena Smith to testify under oath.

That did not happen, however, because Smith obtained a lawyer and entered into negotiations with federal prosecutors that produced an immunity agreement contingent on his not cooperating with the congressional task force.

The Washington Post and other publications, citing sources, reported that Smith told federal prosecutors that Rostenkowski's office in the past five years received about $20,000 in exchange for expense vouchers written for postage stamps.

A federal grand jury has subpoenaed the expense records from 1986 to April 1992 for Rostenkowski, Kolter and Murphy. Rostenkowski purchased more than $25,000 in postage stamps during that period, while Kolter and Murphy bought smaller amounts.

In the House Bank probe, House leaders were informed that Wilkey had subpoenaed four House employees and one former employee to testify before a grand jury on the bank overdraft investigation, a House official said. Current and former House members wrote about 24,000 overdrafts worth millions of dollars at the bank over a 39-month period.

Staff writers Mike York and Sharon LaFraniere contributed to this report.

The response to Stephens by the three Democrats comes at a time when Justice Department special counsel Malcolm R. Wilkey is stepping up his investigation of check kiting by House members at the now-defunct House Bank. That investigation initially was handled by Stephens, but was reassigned to Wilkey by the attorney general to avoid any appearance of being politically inspired.

Some Democrats have said they fear indictments will be returned shortly before the November election to boost Republican prospects.

"It is amazing that the U.S. attorney is continuing this investigation when the [House] task force report so thoroughly resolves any of the issues within the proper scope of the investigation," Rostenkowski, Murphy and Kolter wrote House Speaker Thomas S. Foley (D-Wash.) yesterday. "Moreover, every report of every former employee of the House Post Office has refuted any notion that we engaged in any conduct that the U.S. attorney could legitimately investigate."

In a statement, Stephens said: "Our responsibility is to enforce the laws of the United States. The purpose of the ongoing grand jury investigation is to determine whether any laws have been broken."

The subpoenas, reported yesterday by the Washington Times, were delivered to Rostenkowski, Murphy and Kolter the same day the House task force issued Democratic and Republican reports on the post office's operations.

The two reports offered a portrait of the post office as a mismanaged patronage haven that excelled in small but questionable po-

Subpoenaed trio's postage purchases don't add up

Did taxpayers buy campaign stamps?

By George Archibald
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Three Democratic congressmen subpoenaed in the House post office probe have apparent discrepancies in campaign postage and printing expenditures and large, unexplained postage purchases with their taxpayer-funded office allowances, according to government records. In past election cycles going back to 1985, large campaign postage stamp purchases by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois and Joe Kolter of Pennsylvania are not matched by comparable campaign disbursements for printing and mailings, according to a study of Federal Election Commission records by The Washington Times. Rep. Austin Murphy of Pennsylvania purchased large quantities of postage stamps with congressional office funds, but no postage with campaign funds in years when he conducted aggressive political fund-raising efforts involving dozens of receptions and dinners and hundreds of contributors. House records and FEC filings show. Stamps purchased with taxpayer funds may not be used for campaign purposes, although there is no system in Congress to ensure this. Converting official funds to personal or campaign use and falsification of official transaction documents are felonies punishable by imprisonment and fines. A federal grand jury probing the House post office is reportedly looking at the stamp purchases by Mr. Rostenkowski, the powerful chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, and Mr. Kol-ter and Mr. Murphy. The three congressmen are close friends of former House Postmaster Robert V. Rota, a Pennsylvania native who served in the patronage post for 20 years before his forced resignation earlier this year. Mr. Rota reportedly is cooperating with federal prosecutors. The re-election committees of the three congressmen purchased at see STAMPS, page A6.

least $162,107 worth of postage stamps with campaign donations from 1985 to March of this year, according to reports filed with the Federal Election Commission.

They bought, at least, $53,948 worth of postage stamps with official House allowances during the same period, although they have the free-mail, congressional "franking" privilege, according to House records.

Expenditures since March have not been made public.

House members may use the franking privilege to mail most letters, publications and packages free by using envelopes or labels with their imprinted signature. The frank may not be used for political campaign purposes.

According to House records and federal campaign reports:

• Mr. Rostenkowski spent $29,726 in congressional office funds and $118,325 in campaign funds for stamps from 1985 to March 1992.

He purchased $16,750 worth of postage stamps with campaign funds during the 1989-1990 election cycle — enough to mail 67,000 first-class letters or more than twice as many bulk-mail circulars — even though he had no opponents.

All but $3,500 of the campaign postage was bought at the House post office in Washington rather than in Chicago, where Mr. Rostenkowski's re-election committee is located.

The congressman's campaign printing, stationery and envelope disbursements for the same period totaled less than $2,000.

No, one, on Mr. Rostenkowski's House or re-election committee staffs would respond to inquiries by The Times.

• Mr. Kolter from 1985 to March 1992 used $18,461 in office money and $38,202 in campaign funds to buy stamps.

Faced by an aggressive Republican challenger in 1990, Mr. Kolter bought $10,777 worth of postage with campaign funds.

But two of the reported postage disbursements for campaign mailings — $2,500 on June 8, 1990, and $4,800 on Oct. 1, 1990 — are not matched by any printing or direct-mail expenditures by the campaign committee for production of such large mailings.

Caught in the House bank scandal, Mr. Kolter was defeated for re-election in this year's Democratic primary. For the contest, he bought $4,502 worth of postage with campaign funds — enough to mail more than 15,000 first-class letters or twice as many bulk-mail circulars to his rural, steel-producing, Pennsylvania district.

But Mr. Kolter's campaign committee spent only $1,830 for printing — primarily for invitations and reply cards for political fund-raisers. No expenditures were listed for printing or production of large campaign mailings.

Jerry Weaver, the congressman's principal campaign adviser since 1982 and a Washington lawyer, referred inquiries to Mr. Kolter's campaign treasurer, Anthony B. Cosentino, in Beaver Falls, Pa. Mr. Cosentino did not respond to messages left on his home telephone answering machine.

• From 1985 to March 1992, Mr. Murphy spent $10,761 in office funds and $5,580 in campaign funds on stamps.

While Messrs. Rostenkowski and Kolter's stamp purchases appeared to dwarf their printing outlays, the opposite was the case for Mr. Murphy.

In the 1985-1992 period, Mr. Murphy reported spending about $10,000 for campaign-related printing and more than $60,000 for entertainment and catering involving about 100 re-election fund-raising events or meetings.

He annually spent about $11,000 of official House funds for stationery and other supplies for mailings to voters in his heavily Democratic steel-producing district.

Congressional sources and Washington political activists who know Mr. Murphy, the chairman of the House Education and Labor subcommittee on labor standards, said he mails invitations for several major yearly fund-raising events to hundreds of political action committee representatives.

"And thank you letters go to hundreds of contributors who made large donations," the sources said.

Mr. Murphy was reprimanded by the House in 1987 for misappropriating government property for his law firm, getting another House member to vote for him in his absence on the House floor and authorizing improper House payments to a "ghost employee."

Mr. Murphy did not respond to messages left with staff aides in his Washington and Charlestown offices.

The three congressmen denied wrongdoing earlier this year when the office of U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens subpoenaed their official House expense records related to postage-stamp purchases for the past six years.

Now they are using their Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination to reject subpoenas for personal appearances before the grand jury investigating the House post office.

The congressmen say Mr. Stephens is engaging in a "political witch hunt" and that they have been cleared of wrongdoing by a congressional task force whose reports on the scandal-plagued post office were released last week.

But the task force, in spite of a partisan split in its findings, made no such claim. Rep. Al Swift, Washington Democrat and a member of the task force, said Friday that its probe did not cover possible violations of House ethics rules or criminal statutes.

The Washington Post reported in May that James C. Smith, the former assistant House postmaster for accounts, said Mr. Rostenkowski had been given cash in place of stamps when submitting official expense vouchers at the post office.

Mr. Smith has since been quoted as saying that the allegation in The Post is untrue.

The House has no controls on the use of postage stamps purchased by congressmen with official funds beyond written rules on the use of official resources. There is no apparent enforcement policy unless abuses are publicized.

Also, there is no apparent limit on the amount of postage stamps that lawmakers can purchase with official funds as long as they have not used all their House allowances, which can be transferred from one purpose to another.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski

Rostenkowski, 2 colleagues get reprieve in postal probe

Subpoenas still not withdrawn

By Paul M. Rodriguez
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens backed down yesterday from forcing three Democratic congressmen, including Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, to honor subpoenas to testify before a federal grand jury probing wrongdoing at the House post office.

The congressmen, who also include Pennsylvania Reps. Austin Murphy and Joe Kolter, were served with the subpoenas last week. Last Friday, all three lawmakers informed Mr. Stephens they would not appear and would invoke their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination.

Joseph diGenova, an attorney for Mr. Murphy and the lead counsel for all three congressmen, said yesterday that Mr. Stephens' office had agreed to a reprieve but that discussions were still under way.

"We have been discussing the

matter in a cordial atmosphere with the U.S. Attorney's Office," Mr. diGenova told The Washington Times yesterday. "I am satisfied with the disposition of the matter up to this point. Other than that, I just have no further comment."

Mr. Stephens was silent on the day's events despite several calls for comment.

Meanwhile, congressional officials have confirmed that records and transcripts for more than half of the 62 witnesses who testified before a House task force that probed the post office scandal are either nonexistent or incomplete.

The discovery of only 28 complete sets of transcripts and partial notes or audio tapes on the remaining 34 witnesses was made after Republicans began urging colleagues on the House floor last week for public disclosure of all records — not just summary reports of the task force's findings.

Attention yesterday was focused more on the issue of whether Messrs. Rostenkowski, Murphy and Kolter would have to appear before the federal grand jury.

One of several congressional officials and others familiar with the matter said the issue was decided by late morning after Mr. Stephens "blinked" during a standoff with the members, who vowed they would not appear.

Despite the U.S. attorney's decision not to compel their testimony, Mr. Stephens did not let the members off the hook by withdrawing subpoenas, said one of the officials familiar with the matter.

"That's a matter still to be decided," said one of the officials, who asked not to be named. "It is now up to him [Mr. Stephens] to decide if he still wants the members to testify before the grand jury."

In a blistering attack on Mr. Stephens last week, the three congressmen accused the U.S. attorney of conducting a "political witch hunt" and a "fishing expedition."

The members also repeated earlier statements that they had been exonerated by a House task force report on the post office scandal, which ostensibly failed to find any proof that any members were directly involved in allegations of criminal wrongdoing.

The members' statements were correct in part, but only insofar as they relied on one of two reports released by the bipartisan task force. The Democrats' version of the report argued that there was no evidence of criminal wrongdoing by members.

The Republicans' version said there was no conclusive evidence either way — to vindicate or condemn — any member whose name became linked to the scandal during the task force's five-month probe.

Over strong objections by Democrats, the Republicans included the names of 11 members in their report and said they did so to avoid charges of a cover-up or a whitewash.

Democrats blasted the GOP move and took angrily to the House floor to denounce Republicans for naming names for the sake of political gain. All but one member in the GOP version of the report were Democrats.

Despite such partisan squabbles, the task force did uncover widespread mismanagement and abuse of the Democratic patronage system in the post office and the inflation of the mail count by as much as 100 million pieces a year.

The inflated mail counts were used to justify hiring more people to do the work of patronage employees, who were incompetent in many cases, the task force said.

As to some of the more serious allegations of wrongdoing, the task force said it was blocked from getting at the truth because the Justice Department prevented interviews of several key witnesses who might have known about wrongdoing, such as stamps for cash and the conversion of campaign checks into cash — or stamps that later were redeemed for money.

One of these people, James C. Smith, a former assistant postmaster for accounts, reportedly is cooperating with the Justice Department and, according to The Washington Post, has said Mr. Rostenkowski received about $20,000 in cash by improperly converting office-supply and stamp vouchers.

What is contained in such testimony, however, has not been made public by the task force. Instead, all its investigatory files and testimony were turned over to the House ethics committee and the Justice Department for follow-up investigations.

Task force members, mostly Democrats, said release of the records could damage the reputation of House employees because a lot of it was not documented.

Republicans are seeking full release of all task force documents, however, to avoid lingering doubts about what the panel may have unearthed.

Five aides subpoenaed in House postal probe

By Paul M. Rodriguez
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens, thwarted in his effort to get three Democratic congressmen to testify before a grand jury probing the House post office, has issued subpoenas to five of their aides.

The subpoenas, which were delivered yesterday, require each of the aides to appear before the grand jury sometime in mid-August, according to congressional and federal officials.

The aides work for Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois and Reps. Austin J. Murphy and Joe Kolter, both of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Stephens also sent a separate letter yesterday to House Speaker Thomas S. Foley protesting plans by Democrats on a House task force to release confidential U.S. Capitol Police files that the panel obtained during its post office probe.

The two-page letter said that "some of those documents contain sensitive and confidential law enforcement information directly relevant to the ongoing criminal investigation."

Any use of them in a public report, the Stephens letter said, "could jeopardize the integrity of the ongoing criminal investigation and unnecessarily undermine the grand jury's consideration of this matter."

A bitter partisan fight has ensued over the release of all investigatory materials and testimony the task force collected, including the police files. That dispute has contributed to a delay in getting the appendix out, officials said.

Democrats want to limit the number of documents made public, while Republicans want all records released. The six-person bipartisan task force did agree to give all its records to the House Ethics Committee and the Justice Department.

The partisan squabbling already has spilled out into the open as Democrats blasted Republicans for naming 11 lawmakers in a GOP version of the task force report.

The Democrats, including Rep. Charlie Rose of North Carolina, chairman of the task force, have said that releasing the lawmakers' names was unfair since no evidence was uncovered linking the members to criminal or ethical wrongdoing.

Messrs. Rostenkowski, Murphy and Kolter have seized on such statements as well as a Democratic version of the task force's report to contend they have been totally exonerated from allegations of wrongdoing.

Mr. Rostenkowski, chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, also has cited a section in the Democrats' report that appeared to refute statements attributed to a former post office official. The official told The Washington Post that the Illinois Democrat had improperly cashed office expense vouchers in return for $20,000 in cash.

Last week, Mr. Stephens issued subpoenas to the three congressmen to appear Tuesday before the grand jury. After consulting with Joseph diGenova, Mr. Murphy's attorney and the former U.S. attorney in the District, the members invoked their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination and said they would not appear.

Although Mr. Stephens backed down from a public showdown with the members, he did not withdraw the subpoenas and said their appearances would be rescheduled, said officials familiar with the matter who spoke with The Washington Times on condition of anonymity.

THE WASHINGTON POST

Aides Subpoenaed in House Post Office Case

Grand Jury Targets Half Dozen From Staffs of Three Democrats Under Investigation

By Kenneth J. Cooper
Washington Post Staff Writer

A federal grand jury has subpoenaed about a half-dozen aides who work for three House Democrats under investigation in connection with the House Post Office, House officials said yesterday.

The three Democrats—Rep. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.), Rep. Joe Kolter (Pa.) and Rep. Austin J. Murphy (Pa.)—refused to appear Tuesday before the grand jury, asserting their rights against self-incrimination. They described the criminal inquiry being directed by U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens, a Republican appointee, as politically motivated.

The House officials would not say exactly how many aides received subpoenas this week, and there appeared to be a coordinated effort among Democratic leaders to conceal their names.

A House rule requires public notice within three legislative days of members or employees who have received subpoenas, but not disclosure of the documents, according to Steven R. Ross, counsel to the House clerk.

Likely recipients of the subpoenas would include the three members' administrative assistants and other aides involved in making or accounting for official expenditures.

The House clerk and the members have already turned over subpoenaed records of the three members' expense accounts from January 1986 to last April.

During that period, Rostenkowski, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has employed one administrative assistant, Virginia C. Fletcher. Murphy also has had one, Frederick P. McLuckie Jr.

Kolter, who was defeated in an April primary, has had four administrative assistants since 1986.

Jays C. Smith, director of account paper at the House Post Office, told federal prosecutors that Rostenkowski's office exchanged official expense vouchers written on postage stamps for as much as $20,000 in cash during the last five years, The Washington Post reported in May.

Although Rostenkowski has available three mail privileges as a member of Congress, his office bought $2900 in stamps since 1986, considerably more than other House leaders, other members of the Illinois delegation and other members whose districts heavily populated by descendants of Polish immigrants.

Smith, a House Post Office employee since 1960, has held his current position for three years. He is now on sick leave.

members of his staff received subpoenas, which were first disclosed in The Washington Times.

Asked who they were, Rostenkowski replied, "I don't know which ones."

Murphy also said he did not know which of his aides were issued subpoenas, a step he described as unnecessary and intimidating.

"I think that's ridiculous," Murphy said. "If he [Stephens] wants to interview my staff, they're available. . . . All he has to do is call and make an appointment."

"The intimidation aspect of the use of a subpoena is perhaps the effect he wants to bring about," Murphy said. "The intimidation of the thing I resent most."

Murphy said that he, too, would be available to make an unscripted statement to prosecutors.

Kolter could not be reached.

Rostenkowski confirmed the comment.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date of transcription 8/11/92

[redacted]
[redacted], telephone number [redacted], white female, DOB [redacted] at [redacted] SSAN [redacted] was interviewed at the offices of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, 555 Fourth Street N.W., Washington, D.C. Also present at this interview were Assistant United States Attorneys (AUSA's) [redacted] and [redacted]. After being advised of the official identities of the interviewers and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

b6
b7C

[redacted] advised that subsequent to her graduation from [redacted], she was contacted by [redacted] [redacted], who was an aid to Congressman JOE KOLTER, regarding employment on KOLTER's Washington, D.C., staff. She accepted an employment offer from KOLTER's office and started work in the Congressmen's administrative office in January of 1989, and continued to be employed there through March of 1989. [redacted] advised that she performed general office duties such as being the office receptionist, answering phones, distributing mail and was in charge of arranging tours of the White House for constituents as guests of the Congressman.

[redacted] recalled that, at that time, [redacted] was KOLTER's [redacted] was the [redacted] and [redacted]
[redacted] was the [redacted]. She stated that [redacted] [redacted] came to work for KOLTER after she left in March of 1989 and that, although she knew the name, she would not know [redacted] if she were to meet her.

b6
b7C

[redacted] advised that, while she was working at this office, she did not believe that KOLTER maintained a Washington residence and that he stayed in his office at night, using the Representatives gym facilities to shower. She recalled that it was one the standing office rules that all of the staff were to vacate the office at 5:00 p.m. each day.

b6
b7C

[REDACTED] stated that while she was employed by KOLTER she was tasked with the assignment of assembling envelopes for a KOLTER fund raising function that was to be held in late February of 1989. She stated that she was given this assignment by [REDACTED] and was told by him that what she was doing was illegal and that she was to be very discreet in completing the assignment. [REDACTED] also told her that this practice was widespread on the Hill.

[REDACTED] stated that she was instructed to go into KOLTER's office and to make sure that the door was closed at all times while she was working on this assignment. She stated that she assembled hundreds, possibly as many as one thousand, letters and that she placed a postage stamp on each of the envelopes. She advised that the stamps were provided to her by [REDACTED] and that she did not know where he got them from. [REDACTED] advised that she worked on this assignment for about a day and a half.

[REDACTED] stated that [REDACTED] helped her with this task and that all of the staffers in KOLTER's office were well aware of this job she was doing as everyone else in the office also received a portion of the job to do. [REDACTED] was of the opinion that the material for this fund raiser could have come from the U.S. House of Representative's print shop. [REDACTED] recalled that the fund raiser was to be held at the National Democratic Club of Washington and that she was given this job within the first two weeks of January, 1989. She further advised that she was also given the assignment of mailing the completed envelopes. She stated that [REDACTED] instructed her to put all of the finished envelopes in brown paper grocery bags and to carry them to and place them in mail boxes that were away from Capitol Hill.

b7C

[REDACTED] advised that she was sure that KOLTER was aware of this fund raiser mailing because it was his own money and he wanted to maintain strict control over it. Additionally, [REDACTED] was not the type of person to do anything like this on his own and she was sure he was given this assignment by KOLTER.

[REDACTED] stated that KOLTER was not well respected by the staffers who worked for him and that he was thought of as a [REDACTED]. She stated that stories circulated around the office about the incorrect things that he would say at meetings and hearings and how he stepped into a swimming pool thinking that it was a dance floor when he was at a social function.

[REDACTED] advised that KOLTER was very good friends with the House [REDACTED] and that they were together daily. [REDACTED] stated that on one occasion she was instructed to take a dry cleaning ticket to [REDACTED] so that he could arrange for the pick up of KOLTER's clothes at the cleaner's. She recalled that she gave this ticket to a black woman at the House Post Office but she did not know her name.

[REDACTED] stated that she was of the opinion that [REDACTED] She got this impression from some of the talk that was circulating around the office at the time.

Subject Priorities for FBI Arrest or Locates:

A - Subject wanted for crimes of violence (i.e. murder, manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault) or convicted of such crimes in the past five years.

B - Subjects wanted for crimes involving the loss or destruction of property valued in excess of $25,000 or convicted of such crimes in the past five years.

C - All others

Claiming Non-Federal Arrests, Summonses, Recoveries or Convictions:

It is permissible to claim a local arrest, summons, recovery or conviction if the FBI significantly contributed to the accomplishment. A succinct narrative setting forth the basis for the claim must accompany this report. When claiming a local recovery, enter the word "LOCAL" to the right of the amount. Enter "LF" in the "In-Jail" block for all life sentences and "CP" for capital punishment sentences.

Reporting Convictions:

Convictions should not be reported until the sentence has been issued. There are two exceptions to this rule. The conviction information can be submitted by itself if:

1. The subject becomes a fugitive after conviction but prior to sentencing.

2. The subject dies after conviction but prior to sentencing.

An explanation is required in the Remarks section for either of the above exceptions.

Rule 20 Situations:

The field office that obtained the process (normally the office of origin) is the office that should claim the conviction, not the office where the subject enters the plea in cases involving Rule 20 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedures.

Investigative Assistance or Techniques (IA/Ts) Used:

-Since more than one IA/T could have contributed to the accomplishment, each IA/T used must be rated.

-The IA/T used must be rated each time an accomplishment is claimed. (For example - if informant information was the basis for a complaint, an arrest, a recovery and a conviction and if separate FD-515s are submitted for each of the aforementioned accomplishments, the "Informant Information" block must be rated on each FD-515 even if it was the same information that contributed to all the accomplishments.)

Subject: PLATE BLOCK
OO:WF

The purpose of this memorandum is to request SAC approval for the purchase of a portable computer to be used in conjunction with the captioned matter.

The investigation into the subject case centers around U.S. House of Representative vouchers which can be used by Representatives (Members) for the acquisition of goods for official use. Investigation has revealed that certain Members have abused this official privilege by the utilization of these vouchers to obtain large dollar amounts of U.S. postage stamps from the House Post Office that were converted into cash for the Member's personal use. To date, 299 vouchers totalling $126,743.65 are being examined as submitted by five separate Members that pertain to the postage stamp allegations. Additionally, these vouchers were also used to obtain other materials, essentially large amounts of office supplies, which were then taken for the Member's personal use. This practice has been occurring over a period of many years and it is anticipated that the total number of vouchers involved in this matter will multiply as additional Members are identified as subjects.

Two individual data bases have been created, one by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service and one by the FBI, to organize the vouchers that have been utilized by the subjects in this matter. Also, one other data base has been created and data loaded which will be utilized to examine the question if any Federal Election Commission (FEC) violations were committed by the subject Members. These data bases have been used extensively in this matter and it is anticipated that usage will increase. There is also the strong possibility that there will eventually be a link established between the captioned matter and the "Big Bounce" investigation (46A-WF-179870, OO:WF), as it is suspected that certain Member's utilized monies obtained from the House Post Office to cover insufficient fund checks written on their House Bank accounts.

This case is currently being worked by the FBI in conjunction with the U.S. Capitol Police and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service using a "Task Force" approach. Much of this investigation, due to the extreme sensitivity of this matter, is conducted from and under the direction of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia. There exists the need to have the capacity to query these data bases, and others as they are established, for the purpose of making investigative decisions and assignments. There also exists the real need for this capability to be under the control of the FBI. A portable computer, loaded with the appropriate software and data would facilitate this need.

On 8/25/92 ISA [redacted] was contacted and concurred with this proposal. ISA [redacted] advised that, if this request were approved, he could assist with the specifications for this computer and that he could provide the necessary software that would be required for this task.

The Grand Jury charges that:

COUNT ONE

CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD THE UNITED STATES

1. At all times material to this indictment, the United States House of Representatives Post Office (the House Post Office) was an Agency of the United States House of Representatives and functioned as a contract post office for the United States Postal Service.

2. At all times material to this indictment, the official function of the House Post Office was to provide postal services to members of the United States House of Representatives and others on Capitol Hill. These services included the delivery of United States mail, the sale of United States postage stamps, the sale of United States Postal money orders, and the provision of other special services relating to the transportation of the United States mail.

3. At all times material to this indictment, the employees of the House Post Office were patronage employees of the United States House of Representatives.

4. At all times material to this indictment, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE was an employee of the House Post Office serving at various times as a secretary to the Postmaster, as Office Manager, as the Executive Assistant to the Postmaster, and as the Chief of Staff of the House Post Office. Her duties as the Executive Assistant and Chief of Staff included the supervision of other House Post Office employees, as directed by the Postmaster.

5. At all times material to this indictment, one House Post Office employee was appointed as the Director of Accountable Papers. The Director of Accountable Papers reported to the defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE during the period of time in which she was the Chief of Staff. The Director was charged with the safe-keeping and disbursement of public money related to the postal services of the House Post Office. The Director also supervised 14 stamp clerks.

6. At all times material to this indictment, the Director of Accountable Papers would obtain from the United States Postal Service an allotment of United States postage stamps to be used for the operation of the House Post Office. This allotment was known as the House Post Office "accountability," the amount of which would be increased by the United States Postal Service upon request of the Director of Accountable Papers. In July of 1991, the "accountability" stood at $442,812.92.

7. At all times material to this indictment, the cash and United States postage stamps used by the Director of Accountable Papers for the operation of the House Post Office were the property of the United States Postal Service.

8. At all times material to this indictment, the Director of Accountable Papers would distribute a portion of his "accountability" to the various stamp clerks at the five post office facilities located at various office buildings on Capitol Hill. As the stamp clerks sold their allotment of United States postage stamps, they would give money in the form of checks, cash, and United States House of Representatives vouchers to the Director of Accountable Papers in order to purchase additional postage stamps from the United States Postal Service.

9. At all times material to this indictment, the Director of Accountable Papers was responsible for depositing the cash and checks from the sale of postage stamps and United States postal money orders with Riggs National Bank, Washington, D.C., on a daily basis.

10. At all times material to this indictment, the P-300 Account was a charge account obtained by the United States House of Representatives for payment of Express Mail overnight delivery of packages relating to the official business of the House Post Office. Defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE, while employed as a supervisor at the House Post Office, was responsible for using and approving charges to the P-300 Account.

11. At all times material to this indictment, the House Post Office Round Dater was a device used to postmark United States mail deposited at the House Post Office. The Round Dater indicated the station where the mail was deposited and the date of cancellation. The date on the Round Dater could be manually changed by certain House Post Office employees.

The Conspiracy

12. From at least in or about January 1983, and continuing through in or about February 1992, the exact dates being unknown to the Grand Jury, within the District of Columbia, the defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE willfully and knowingly did combine, conspire, agree, and confederate with other persons, known and unknown to the Grand Jury, to defraud the United States and an agency of the United States, that is:

(A) by defrauding the House Post Office and the citizens of the United States of America of their right to have the House Post Office business and affairs conducted honestly, impartially, and with integrity, free from corruption, conflict of interest, deceit and fraud; and

(B) by defrauding the House Post Office and citizens of the United States of America of their right to the conscientious, loyal, honest, faithful, unbiased, impartial, and disinterested service, actions and performance of official duties of House Post Office officers and employees, necessary for the performance of lawful governmental functions, free from corruption, influence, conflict of interest, deceit, dishonesty, fraud, partiality, and favoritism.

Goals of the Conspiracy

13. It was a goal of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and other co-conspirators would use funds belonging to the United States, and would use United States government employees, to perform personal and campaign services for Members of the United States House of Representatives, thereby diverting those funds and those employees from governmental functions.

14. It was a further goal of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and other co-conspirators would enrich themselves and their friends by using government funds, equipment, and employees for personal matters.

Means and Methods Used in Seeking to Achieve the Goals of the Conspiracy

15. In order to further the goals of said conspiracy defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and other co-conspirators would and did use the following means and methods, among others:

16. It was a part of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and a co-conspirator would and did allow the Director of Accountable Papers to forego making daily deposits of the money he accumulated during the performance of his duties, in order to have funds available to cash checks and to provide other monetary services outside the official functions of the House Post Office for the personal convenience of the co-conspirators and others, including legislative officials.

17. It was further a part of the conspiracy that defendant

JOANNA G. O'ROURKE would and did direct employees of the House Post Office to cash personal checks for her using the public money intrusted to them as public officers, and to "hold" her checks by not depositing them in the bank for a period of time, until her personal bank account would have sufficient funds to cover the checks.

18. It was further a part of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and other co-conspirators would and did charge the P-300 Account for the expense of sending certain personal items by United States Express Mail to the home district of a Member of the United States House of Representatives, which personal items had been delivered to them by the staff of the Member, with the instruction that the items be sent by Express Mail.

19. It was further a part of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE would and did charge the P-300 Account for the expense of sending her own overtime checks by United States Express Mail to her out-of-state bank.

20. It was further a part of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and other co-conspirators would and did cause employees of the House Post Office to use the Round Dater to back-date the postmark on United States mail to give the fraudulent impression that the mail was deposited in the United States government mail on an earlier date than it was, in fact, deposited.

21. It was further a part of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE would and did obtain and renew post office boxes at the Main Post Office, Brentwood Station, for selected Members of the United States House of Representatives for the receipt of solicited campaign contributions and other mail.

22. It was further a part of the conspiracy that defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and others would and did divert House Post Office employees from their regular postal duties and require them to collect campaign contributions mailed to the Brentwood Station and to deliver them directly to the offices of Members of the United States House of Representatives.

Overt Acts

23. In furtherance of the above-described conspiracy and to accomplish its purposes, objectives, and goals, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE and other co-conspirators together committed the following overt acts, among others, within the District of Columbia:

a) Between on or about December 1, 1990, and December 31, 1990, the exact date being unknown to the Grand Jury, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE charged the P-300 Account for the expense of sending certain personal items by United States Express Mail to the home district of a Member of the United States House of Representatives, which personal items had been delivered to her by a staff member of the Representative, with the instruction that the items be sent by Express Mail.

b) On or about April 3, 1990, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE charged the P-300 Account for the expense of sending her own overtime check by United States Express Mail to her out-of-state bank.

c) On or about April 16, 1985, the exact date being unknown to the Grand Jury, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE caused an employee of the House Post Office to back-date a postmark on a mailing to the Internal Revenue Service relating to a Federal Income Tax Return.

d) Between in or about January 1990 and January 1992, the exact dates being unknown to the Grand Jury, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE directed employees of the House Post Office to pick up campaign-related mail at the Brentwood Station and deliver it to the offices of Members of the United States House of Representatives.

e) On or about June 3, 1991, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE requested that an employee of the House Post Office under her supervision cash a $1,500.00 personal check for her, using the public money intrusted to the employee, and that the employee "hold" the check without depositing it until O'ROURKE'S bank account had sufficient funds to cover the check.

(In Violation of Title 18, United States Code, Sections 371 and 2.)

COUNT TWO

EMBEZZLEMENT OF GOVERNMENT PROPERTY

1. The Grand Jury incorporates by reference Paragraph 10 of Count One.

2. From in or about December 1990, and continuing to on or about April 3, 1990, the exact dates being unknown to the Grand Jury, within the District of Columbia, defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE willfully and knowingly did embezzle and convert to her own use and the use of others, without authority, a thing of value, that is, funds of the United States Government, by improperly and unlawfully charging to the P-300 Account the expense of sending personal items by United States Express Mail, such items consisting of O'ROURKE's own overtime checks, as well as personal property that staff members of a Congressman had instructed her to send by Express Mail.

(In Violation of Title 18, United States Code, Sections 641 and 2.)

COUNT THREE

PUBLIC OFFICER MISUSING PUBLIC FUNDS

From on or about August 25, 1989, and continuing to on or about June 3, 1991, the exact dates being unknown to the Grand Jury, in the District of Columbia, the defendant JOANNA G. O'ROURKE did cause employees of the House Post Office, being public officers charged with the safe-keeping of public monies, to willfully and knowingly embezzle public money by giving her interest-free loans out of public monies that had been intrusted to the employees to be used for official purposes, and not for personal loans.

(In Violation of Title 18, United States Code, Sections 648 and 2.)
